

Importing Personal Property Into Zambia

HOUSEHOLD GOODS AND PERSONAL EFFECTS

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS AND REQUIRED DOCUMENTS

Customs Regulations:

Client must be in Zambia at the time shipment arrives but are not required to be present during clearance. Used household goods and personal effects are tax and duty free provided goods have been owned and used by the customer for a minimum of six months and customer has lived abroad for at least two years. All new items will be levied import duties and taxes + VAT. The goods must be imported within six months of arrival. Items can not be sold, lent or otherwise disposed of during stay.

Returning nationals must have qualified proof of living abroad for 2 years to be eligible for tax and duty free entry of belongings. The goods must be imported within 6 months of return date. Failure to do so results in payment of duty and taxes.

Household goods and vehicles must be cleared separately and will incur as many Customs clearance fees as the number of Customs entries. It takes between 20 – 40 days to obtain the free entry certificate. All original documents should reach the Destination Agent a minimum of 20 days before the shipment's arrival to allow the client's employer to obtain the certificate of free entry from the Customs Head Office and minimize the port charges.

NOTE: All document copies including passports must be certified by the Zambian High Commission in the country of origin, or by a Commissioner of Oath.

Required Documents:

NOTES:

Entry & Exit Requirements: Yellow Fever vaccination is not a requirement of entry unless entering from a country where it is endemic. The Government of the Republic of Zambia requires travelers to have at least two blank visa pages in their passport upon entering Zambia. Those transiting South Africa should ensure that their passports contain at least two completely blank (unstamped) visa pages each time entry is sought. These pages are in addition to the endorsement/amendment pages at the back of the passport.

U.S. citizens should closely follow immigration guidelines, including visa requirements for travel to Zambia. U.S. citizens who wish to engage in voluntary service in Zambia, are reminded that they must enter Zambia on a business visa. Zambian Immigration officials insist that visitors carry the original or a certified copy of their passport and immigration permit at all times.

The Zambian government requires that all individuals intending to reside in Zambia, including for voluntary work, must be able to show a police clearance, including fingerprints, from their home country. U.S. citizens staying in Zambia more than three months must apply for a National Registration Card (NRC); this blue-colored card for non-Zambians is the equivalent of the standard green-colored NRC carried by Zambian citizens and costs approximately $10.

Visa: Zambia Immigration offers an application by e-mail service for multiple-entry visas. U.S. citizens can write to ZambiaVisa@zamnet.zm and provide a copy of the biographic page of their passport, completed Zambia visa application form (available at the Zambia Embassy website), and a letter addressed to the Chief Immigration Officer detailing the intended purpose and length of stay.

Safety & Security: Tensions have been rising in Western Province over rights under the Barotseland Agreement of 1964. In January 2011, protests in Mongu and Limulunga turned violent. The Government of Zambia considers it treasonous for anyone to discuss the Barotseland Agreement or Barotseland autonomy/secession. The U.S. Embassy discourages travelers from driving off-road or on remote, lightly-used tracks near the borders with the Democratic Republic of the Congo (Congo-Kinshasa) and Angola as there may still be undetected land mines and unexploded ordnance.

Crime: Expatriates have been the victim of armed robberies in Livingstone, Copperbelt, and elsewhere. Carjacking remains an ongoing problem, especially in Lusaka and Livingstone. Carjackers generally employ a strategy of blocking the back of one's car when the car is waiting to pass through a security gate into a residence or other facility. In recent cases involving expatriates, the victim has been held for several hours to allow perpetrators time to escape with the vehicle. Travelers should drive with doors locked and windows closed at all times and remain vigilant when entering or exiting a residence.

Criminal Penalties Possession of more than 0.5 grams of an illegal substance can constitute drug trafficking in Zambia. The Zambian Drug Enforcement Commission (DEC) has detained a number of U.S. citizens for possession of anti-histamines such as Benadryl and other over-the-counter medications which contained small quantities of diphenhydramine, an active ingredient that is on Zambia's list of controlled substances. Although unaware of these restrictions, U.S. citizens have been charged with drug-trafficking offenses, had their passports confiscated, and have been jailed.

Health: Cholera is a serious risk and pre-cautions are essential. Immunization against polio and typhoid is recommended. Malaria exists year round throughout the region. Trachoma is widespread as is hepatitis A, B and E. Meningococcal meningitis may occur. Human trypanosomiasis (sleeping sickness) has been reported. Plague has been reported in remote areas. A high proportion of the population is affected with HIV/AIDS; thus one should take all necessary precautions.

Fumigation of Wood Packing Materials: Zambia imposes ISPM15 requirements and regulations for wood packaging material (WPM).
